Sheriff of Jones Put Under Arrest In Double Slaying

Sheriff Middlebrooks Is Charged With Conspiracy To Violate Liquor Law—Arrest Ordered.

FEDERAL AND LOCAL OFFICERS ARE BUSY

Special Deputy Who Led Posse in Search of Slayers of Two Officers Is Jailed.

Macon, Ga., September 4.—Investigation into the slaying last Friday of Floyd Malone, county policeman, and Frank Tucker, deputy, took a sensational turn here tonight when warrants were issued for J. C. Middlebrooks, sheriff of Jones county, and G. C. Rape, former county policeman, who one week ago was sworn in as a special deputy, and led a posse in a hunt for the alleged slayers. The warrants charged conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

Sheriff Middlebrooks was arrested at Gray late tonight and was brought immediately to Macon.

Rape was taken to the county jail here after the federal warrant was served.

The warrant under which Rape was held, which was read to him by Commissioner W. E. Martin at the county jail, charged that on October 1, 1924 Rape and Sheriff J. C. Middlebrooks entered into an agreement with a group of alleged moonshiners, to permit them to operate upon payment of a specified amount of money.

"I am not guilty of the charge," said Rape. "I have raided every one of these persons, with the exception of one man and I have been unable to find a still on his premises."

Rape demanded a commitment hearing and Commissioner Martin said he would hear the case on Thursday or Friday of the coming week.

The warrants were issued by United States Commissioner Martin after Solicitor Joe B. Duke and Solicitor Charles H. Garrett presented alleged disclosures in the investigation.

The federal warrant was served by Capt. McLeod, deputy United States marshal and M. C. Hendrix, United States prohibition enforcement officer.

Joe B. Duke, solicitor general of the Ocmulgee circuit; J. D. Roberts, chairman of the county board of commissioners; several Jones county officers, detectives and Bibb county officers were most active in the investigation today. The Jones county officers and Solicitor Duke were at the Bibb county court house throughout the day and well into the night, making their investigation.

Solicitor General Charles H. Garret was called into the conference more than once during the afternoon. But it was stated that he was called upon for evidence.

"We are not trying to railroad anyone," said Solicitor Duke tonight. "We want facts so that justice may be obtained. From the headway that has been made, I believe that the exonerator's jury when it meets next

POSTAL RECEIPTS SET NEW RECORD

All August Records Smashed When Local Office Receipts Climb to New High Mark.

Another forceful indication of the growth and prosperity of Atlanta is shown in receipts of the Atlanta post-office for August of this year, which smashed all previous August records, it was announced Friday by E. K. Large, postmaster of the local post-office.

A gain of almost $20,000 was registered on August of 1924, thus pushing the total record up to a new August in the history of the city.

Total receipts for August of this year were $276,575.75 as compared with $257,210.41, a net gain of $19,363.77.

"Atlanta is entering upon the greatest era of prosperity ever experienced," Mr. Large said. "Postal receipts are increasing daily. Atlanta is holding its own with any city in the country. The city is showing an exceptional progress at a time generally regarded as depressive activity."

"I recently returned to Atlanta from a short vacation in Florida, and although there is a great boom there, it is confined almost solely to real estate, and many persons believe it can not last. Florida's boom is being reflected in Atlanta," Mr. Large said. "It will be a boomerang for Georgia, where real estate is solid and where agricultural and industrial development is comparatively in infancy and growing by leaps and bounds."

Flames Raging Unchecked Due to Broken Main—Loss $500,000 So Far.

Rumors that two persons were burned to death and several injured could not be verified.

Damage so far is estimated at $500,000.

No opposition to the flames was offered except from a few weak streams of water from several tank cars that were switched onto a siding of the Texas and Pacific railway. A strong wind was blowing.

The fire originated in the home of C. Children, a barber, who, with his wife and baby, escaped in their night clothes.

"All of the buildings in the path of the fire were of frame construction and the negro section, into which the flames spread at midnight, offered ideal conditions for their spread."

Report That Flares Were Seen Also Spurs Tired Searchers for Missing PN-9, Number 1.

NAVY RADIO WORK FEATURE OF SEARCH

Little Credence Placed in Report of Florida Amateur Operator That Plane Has Been Found.

Honolulu, September 4.—(AP)—Fast fading hopes for rescue of the five sailors of the missing navy seaplane PN-9, No. 1, were revived today by news that 18 more destroyers were coming to aid in the search.

The U. S. S. Whippoorwill's report of sightings supposed flares last night also served to spur on the tired searchers, who have been operating almost continuously since the seaplane disappeared about 1:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The PN-9, No. 1, which was trying to make a non-stop flight from San Francisco to Pearl Harbor, ran out of fuel and was lost in a rainstorm.

The 18 destroyers, coming to Hawaii from Samoa, were not due until September 10, but it was supposed here today that they had been ordered to put on top speed.

In the midst of the orderly haste with which the search is being conducted, the work of the navy radio has been an outstanding feature. Some operators, who have been at their keys and earphones continuously since Monday night, listening in and handling thousands of messages, still are carrying on. Hundreds of radio dispatches are being handled daily giving position reports, instructions, orders, suggestions and information upon which the fate of the missing seaplanes may depend.

ST. AUGUSTINE RADIO REPORT IS DISCOUNTED.

Washington, September 4.—(AP)—The navy department was advised to light by Arthur Alman, amateur radio operator at St. Augustine, Fla., that he had learned from the wireless operator of the U. S. S. Litchfield that the missing seaplane P-7, No. 1, had been found, but officials on duty placed little credence in the account.

They were mystified by Alman's report of his conversation with the Litchfield which the operator said gave her position as 400 miles south of Samoa, and expressed doubt that the ship could have sighted the sea plane.

The destroyer Litchfield is with the Pacific fleet steaming from Samoa to Hawaii and now is about 600 miles north of Samoa. Navy officials said they were unable at present on account of the heat and resulting static to reach distant points by radio and were unable to understand how Alman could have talked with the destroyer.

They pointed out that the seaplane must be in the vicinity of Hawaii, while the Litchfield still is hundreds of miles from that point.

CITY ADVANTAGES WINNING FACTOR

Byrd Printing Company Is Awarded $100,000 Contract From New York Concern.

Because of Atlanta's numerous industrial advantages a big Atlanta firm has been able to invade New York and land a contract amounting to $100,000 a year, it was revealed Friday by C. P. Byrd, head of Byrd Printing company, who confirmed a report that his company landed a big printing contract from a large chain store company of New York.

"We were able to get this contract because of the advantages Atlanta possesses as an industrial city and because our company can turn out in Atlanta the quality of work required in New York," Mr. Byrd said.

The contract calls for the printing of several million labels for various food products hand in hand by the chain store company and Mr. Byrd's firm is now printing these labels and shipping them to all parts of the United States, where branch stores are located.

"There is hardly anything that cannot be obtained in Atlanta and virtually every kind of staple article is manufactured here."

Mr. Byrd added more information to Atlanta's story of increasing prosperity. He declared that his company had enjoyed a big increase in business in the past six months.

"Business is getting so active in Atlanta that we have been forced to abandon our plan of closing our plant on Saturday afternoons," he said.

"All of the buildings in the path of the fire were of frame construction and the negro section, into which the flames spread at midnight, offered ideal conditions for their spread."

COOLIDGE TO PUSH VOLUNTARY UNIONS OF RAIL SYSTEMS

Would Allow Carriers Five or Six Years To Work Out Their Own Plans for Consolidations

Swampscott, Mass., September 4.—(AP)—The administration intends to do all it can during the next few years to encourage voluntary railroad consolidation in the hope that it will not be necessary to force grouping of carriers.

This program of President Coolidge was outlined today at White Court with the added statement that in his opinion consolidations are a necessary forerunner of a readjustment of the nation's freight-rate structure.

The president, who Wednesday discussed the transportation problem with Chairman Watson, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission, was represented today as believing that the immediate concern of congress should be to pass whatever legislation is needed to help bring about voluntary mergers. In the event results contemplated are not obtained, it was indicated that the president would favor legislation designed to force consolidation.

Would Give 5 Years.

After the president's talk with Senator Watson, it was stated that they thought the carriers should have five or six years to work out their own consolidation plans.

Mr. Coolidge realizes it would be impossible to pass a law forcing one railroad to take over another, but he believes legislation could be enacted, making it to the advantage of one system to absorb additional lines.

The contract calls for the printing of several million labels for various food products hand in hand by the chain store company and Mr. Byrd's firm is now printing these labels and shipping them to all parts of the United States, where branch stores are located.

Brilliant Welcome Planned : JONES AND GUNN TO BE CENTER OF SPECTACLE : To Atlanta's Great Golfers

BY H. C. HAMILTON.

The triumphant return of Napoleon with the peacock of France tagging at his heels, the grand parade of the fleet in the Hudson after the victory over Spain, the magnificent return of the Rainbow division from France, are to be put to shame in Atlanta when Bob Jones and Wattis Gunn come home—if the thing can be done.

Atlanta, the golfing capital of the world, standing today in whomp' er up admiration of the two youths who have made golf history, is proud of these citizens and she means to say it with entertainment.

The East Lake Country club, where both youths are members and where both do most of their playing when in Atlanta, is frankly a big puzzle over the situation. Here are two members playing the final round for the championship of the United States. No club ever had such a thing put up to it, so there are no rules to go by. This thing simply must be done right.

Scott Hudson, president of the Atlanta Athletic club, and of course of the country club, has appointed a committee to confer with representatives of other golf clubs and with citizens at large, for everyone is on this. Al Bailey is its chairman and he has been running up a considerable gasoline bill scurrying here and there and lining up ideas for the thing.

The probability now is that Labor Day will be pressed into service as the day on which the village of East Lake will be the most important section of the golfing United States.

What is going to be done for Jones and Gunn certainly is going to be a plenty, and standing room only is a guaranteed condition.

The whole town joined in messaging its appreciation of these youngsters, who have won the country by the ears. Mayor Sims wired congratulations among others, while Argonne Post No. 1 of the American Legion hit the band wagon the first jump and offered to take charge of a grand and glorious time. Individual messages of congratulation also were sent by the post. The post wants to sponsor an exhibition match between the two champions and hold it in a telethon to be given by Bill Simon, Clark Howell, Jr., Evan Howell, Ann W. Candler, Oscar Coe, B. P. Gamble, Fuzzy Woodruff, Cliff Wheately and, according to the telegram, "5,000 others."

GIRL, 6, KIDNAPED; CHAUFFEUR IS SHOT CHASING ABDUCTOR

Neighbor Gets Call Later, Offering To Return for $4,000 Her Niece, Who Resembles Girl Seized.

Montclair, N. J., September 4.—(AP)

Completely baffled by a score of tangled clues, police and citizens tonight scoured the club house exhausted when Gunn came in with the greatest gallery of the day. But Gunn had given the gallery everything it wanted. He didn't stint it. He and Dick Jones came to No. 15 on the afternoon round with Gunn's dormie foil. Watts was also a dormie and told them in a telethon to give him a drive, and to the edge of the green 45 feet from the pin on his chin. Jones was lying three, 40 feet from the pin. Gunn surveyed, gauged and sighted along the undulations of the velvet green. He gave the ball a resounding smack with his putter, and in a straight line it rolled to the cup and dropped for birdie.

The first to rush forward to Gunn after his victory was Tom Payne, of Atlanta, vice president of the United States Golf association, grinning like a Cheshire cat, if one as dignified in mien and mettlesome in his golf clothes as Tom Payne is can be compared with the feline creature. He was wearing the feline creature. He was wearing Wattis' shoulders, but he didn't speak for a moment.

When Payne finally did open his

2 STATES TO BUY SAVANNAH BRIDGES

Purchase of two Savannah river bridges between Horry county, Georgia, and Anderson county, South Carolina, by the state highway departments of the two states will be completed Wednesday when Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, U. S. N. retired, chairman of the South Carolina state highway board, arrives in Atlanta for a conference with members of the Georgia state highway board. The neighboring states have an option on the bridges signed by A. N. Alford, the owner, who will sell them for $140,000. Of this price, $20,000 will be paid by the two counties and the remainder, $120,000, by the two states, in equal portions. The bridges will be operated by the two states on a toll basis for a year and a half longer, in which time they are expected to pay for themselves. After that they will be made free bridges.

Seek Relief For Farmers

Following the conference Wednesday with Admiral McGowan, Chairman John N. Holder and members J. H. Phillips and Stanley S. Bennett of the Georgia state highway board will leave Wednesday night for Washington to confer with the U. S. bureau of public roads on its position relative to advancing federal aid on new highway projects for the relief of the drought stricken section of Georgia.

The highway board will be accompanied by Washington commissioners Gorden Lee and W. D. Upshaw, and will be joined there by Congressman Tom Bell and Vinson, all of whom will support Georgia's plea for advancement of 1926 federal aid so that farmers of north Georgia may be given employment in road building and earn a living through the fall and winter months, their crops having been practically destroyed by the long drought.

On the return from Washington Mr. Holder will announce the date for a meeting of county commissioners of the counties in the drought-affected area to be held in Atlanta the early part of week after next. At this time the commissioners will be asked to give consideration to the placing of additional 800 miles after October 1, and that the board will obtain all possible information on the subject and make a personal inspection of every route asked before granting any of the mileage.

Hearings on requests for portions of the 800 miles addition to the state highway system provided for by the recent general session occupied a great portion of Friday's meeting of the highway board. Chairman Holder announced that the board will not give consideration to the placing of the additional 800 miles until after October 1, and that the board will obtain all possible information on the subject and make a personal inspection of every route asked before granting any of the mileage.

Requests for additional for considerably more mileage than the legislature provided. The additional 800 miles will increase the present state system mileage of 6,200 miles to an even 7,000 miles.

SILVER CUP OFFERED BEST CORN GROWER

To encourage production of more and better corn in the south, the Southern Railway system will offer a handsome silver cup to be competed for annually and awarded to the growers of the best 10 ears of corn grown in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, or Kentucky and state and district fairs.

Details of the plan were announced by Roland Turner, of Atlanta, general agricultural agent for the Southern. The competition will be open to all corn growers in the states named, the only restriction being that entries must be entered in one of the fairs held in state in which the corn was grown.

Entries of each of the fairs will be asked to forward the best 10 ear exhibit shown to the general agricultural agent of the Southern. As soon as exhibits have been received from all the fairs, the award of the cup for that year will be made by three independent judges. The names of the judges and the date for the award will be announced in advance.

TARPOON RODEO COMES TO CLOSE WITH ELECTION

Pass Christian, Miss., September 4. (AP)—Organization of the Pass Christian National Tarpon association at a dinner last night marked the close on the first annual tarpon rodeo here.

Formal organization followed the award of the pennant to James Philip Parker, 17-year-old New Orleans youth, who was the only participant in the two tarpon rodeos to catch two tarpon.

John M. Parker, former governor of Louisiana, was elected president of the association. Vice presidents include Charles H. Mackham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, Chicago; W. L. Mapother, president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, Louisville; W. M. Dewey, Chicago hotel proprietor; Charles Warren Fairbanks, Indianapolis newspaper publisher; Arthur D. Parker, New Orleans; John T. McDonald, Pass Christian; W. D. Robinson, Pass Christian, secretary.

Ford Motors Assets Reach Near Billion

Lansing, Mich., September 4.—(AP) Assets of $644,624,468 were shown by the Ford Motor company in its annual report to the state corporation division, it was announced today. This is an increase of $170,000,000 over last year.

Assets of subsidiary companies, it was estimated, would raise the total to $1,000,000,000.

The statement, which was of December 31, 1924, listed cash on hand and part rights, formulas, good will and value of credits at $265,723,525, stocks and bonds at $55,070,305, supplies at $95,254,938, prepaid expenses $14,4082, fixed assets, less depreciation and amortization $227,126,617.

Liabilities were given as accounts payable $33,116,228; employees' investments $23,318,588; taxes and taxes payable $28,122,714; amortization of patents $185,138; capital stock at $17,264,900; surplus $542,476,496.

The Ford interests also paid $2,123 in taxes for other concerns controlled either by Edsel or Henry Ford, the complete reports for which have not been made available. The other corporations included the Lincoln Motor company, Ford Hydro-Electric company, G. F. Johansson, Inc., Stout Metal Airplane company, Fordson Power company, Fordson Coal company and Dearborn Publishing company.

SHERIFF OF JONES PUT UNDER ARREST

Wednesday will be able to fix the responsibility for the crimes."

JONES IS COMBED BY FEDERAL MEN.

Gray, Ga., September 4.—(AP) A large force of federal prohibition officers, including several "under cover" men, is quietly at work in Jones county, searching for stills and for evidence.

From all directions, by automobile and by train, unobtrusive men drifted in Thursday afternoon and night, vanishing into the "back reaches" of the county, where moonshine operations have been suspected for some time.

The squad of government men was seen here by residents of the county commissioners, who voiced their appreciation through Guy Anderson, local attorney. Mr. Anderson conferred with agents at the Atlanta office two days ago.

The influx of federal officers is the only late development of importance in the investigation, caused by the killing a week ago of Floyd Malone and Frank Tucker, county police, who were ambushed and shot through the back just after making a raid on a still in the vicinity of Choate's Mill on Garrison road.

The jury of Acting Coroner A. M. Greene late Thursday adjourned until next Wednesday, at the request of Sheriff General Joe B. Duke, who has assumed direct charge of the investigation.

More than 100 witnesses have appeared before the coroner's jury in six days of intermittent sessions, but many more are to be subpoenaed and it is to give the officers time to summons these that the long adjournment is granted.

While reports are current that new warrants have been issued involving men "higher up" no statement is forthcoming from any of the officials connected with the probe, and none but they know what evidence has been barried by the testimony of the host of witnesses in the inquest, held behind closed doors.

Commissioners of Jones county Friday asked Governor Clifford Walker to offer a reward of $1,000 for apprehension and conviction of the slayers of Malone and Tucker.

THE CALL OF THE HOUR.

If there ever was a time in Georgia for practical, resourceful cooperation between banker and business man and farmer, that time is now—in the drouth area.

We have not merely called attention to the situation, but we have stressed the importance of organized effort at once, in every drouth county, toward the right kind of relief.

The distressed farmers do not seek charity. The situation is unusual. It will, perhaps, not occur again in a half century. They need and they must have help, and help of the constructive kind.

The easily-spoken sympathy from the lips only will not do any good.

A collection here and there to buy a few supplies for a needy family is not the way to cope with the situation.

The stricken farmers need and they must have tangible evidences of help in buying seeds and fertilizers and supplies for putting in fall grain crops and winter forage, and getting their lands in readiness for next spring by also growing something. Yes, growing more than ever before—during the fall and winter.

It is time for idle words. It is time for resourceful action. Editor Shannon, of Commerce, is in the heart of a drouth section. In the Commerce News he says:

"Well, what shall we do? What can we do? When we discover that our house is on fire, what do we do? Why, we get busy. And that is the thing to do. There is no hope for that corporation, that firm that familiy, or that individual that sits down and does nothing. If the people of this section ever needed a thinking cap in action, they need it today. A combination of brains and energy can work wonders. Where there is a will there is a way. We must be largely the architects of our own fortune. It is folly to say or to imagine that we cannot come back. Remember conditions at the close of the war between the states. Our condition today is far superior to that of the sixties. Who could have imagined that the south of today would have sprung from the ashes of the sixties? We can do it. We must do it. We will do it. Come back? Why, to be sure we will come back. For, 'You can't put down the honest working man.'

Get busy! That's the command of the hour. The drouth farmer must get busy to "come back" cash in his available resources, budget his coming operations on an economy basis, work hard, and with a smile. It is no time for a grouch.

The drouth area merchant must get busy to arrange his stocks and stores and finances to extend fair and reasonable but judicious help to the farmers that they may come back, and not at usurous rates of interest, direct or indirect, either.

The banker must get busy to see that the merchant and the farmer combined have sufficient cooperation to make the program effective.

The federal reserve must get busy to help the banker if needed.

The Walton Tribune says:

"It is indeed gratifying to know that all the banks of Walton county are in strong and healthy condition and that there is a general disposition among them to cooperate with the farmers in every practical way. The destructive drouth has hit this section heavily and many people will be compelled to have assistance towards making another crop or else move away. The present situation affords the banks a wide opportunity for cooperation and service, and the Tribune hopes that each one will grasp it with all the earnestness and sympathy at their command. Upon their attitude and that of the well-to-do landlords in large measure depends the future welfare and prosperity of this section."

The banks as a rule are healthy everywhere. Employment is being opened up, in public works and in other avenues, for men and teams, thus giving opportunities for "filling in" spare time at remunerative wages while preparing the soils for winter crops.

But even this should not be carried to the extent of taking people from the farms who could serve themselves and families and communities best by building up for the fall and winter, and next spring.

We must use good judgment, and sound economic reasoning in a situation like this.

The help needed principally is the help for the farmer to come back as a farmer—a better and bigger farmer than ever—and not as a "hired man" in some capacity other than farming.

We must comport the situation to good sense for the future as well as the present.

The Winder News says:

"The wide awake farmer will plant a fine out crop this fall. He will prepare his ground well and plant it in October. It will be a great help in making next year's crop. Every farmer ought to also plant several acres in wheat. Rye makes a good early forage. As soon as this short crop is gathered everybody ought to head every energy and put forth every effort toward another crop. Remember the Lord helps those who help themselves. And the banks and men who have money to lend will also help those who help themselves."

Let us also think about hogs and chickens, and the weekly cream checks that a small herd of purebred cattle and good pastures will make possible.

The drouth farmers need the right kind of help so they may help themselves to "come back" on their farms.

They do not need maulding sentiment, and sympathetic platitudes.

The fields are on fire. It's no time to speculate.

ALL-ATLANTA FINALS.

Atlanta today is the amateur golf capital of America. With Bobby Jones, defender, and Watts Gunn, the Tech boy—a new constellation, both qualifying in the semi-finals of Friday, the enthusiasm of Atlantans is unbounded.

At any rate, with a champion holding his own, and a boy protege performing more miraculously than any young golfer of his age, both Atlantans, and with the unique situation of an all-Atlanta final presented, the whole world will begin to believe that golf's world center, is to be held in the semi-finals of Friday, the enthusiasm of Atlantans is unbounded.

Surely a healer ought to have somewhere a mender wants to place such responsibilities in the hands of a delinquent. Surely the state should fix the minimum education or training required from those who would qualify as licensed healers, and not leave such a vital question to the discretion of the would-be healers themselves.

Healers receiving the royal charter would of course be privileged to employ whatever method they might deem best in any circumstances—and laymen or patients would of course have no voice in determining what the method should be. It would be our royal pleasure that doctors be doctors and patients be patients.

With the new order in effect when any one called in a healer he would scarcely know in advance whether the healer would pray for him, massage his neck, give him a shot of serum, or a hot bath. But what matter that?

The qualified healer knows what is best, and the wise patient relies upon his healer's judgment.

With young Gunn brilliantly smashing every record known to golf, playing against frantic but manly opponents, and with the amateur champion playing the same invincible game that has made him America's outstanding amateur, two as fine sportsmen as ever walked a course, both Atlantans, why should not Atlanta be enthusiastic over the marvelous record?

Here's hats off, and hearty cheers for Jones and Gunn and Atlanta and Georgia and the south and America—and for golf.

Atlanta—the music center of the south, the golf capital of the nation!

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

The Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative association is to be warmly commended for its prompt and decisive extension of help to its members in the drouth-inflicted counties.

Following a call meeting of the board of directors held Thursday, President Conwell issued the following statement:

"Our board of directors Thursday took this matter under advisement and went into it thoroughly and at the close of our meeting, a resolution was unanimously adopted by the board providing for the necessary capital stock so that we will have an additional rediscount to commence with that will exceed $2,000,000.

"This assistance, as arranged for by the board of directors, will go to members of the association who have in the past supported cooperative marketing by delivering all of their cotton in accordance with their contract.

The association regrets that it is not in a position either legally or otherwise to render assistance to others than its own members. In a general, but necessarily indirect way, we are dependent on one and the other. The farmer can't pay the merchant, the merchant can't pay the bank, and the bank can't pay any dividends to the lawyer, doctor and preacher. We all do business on the collective credit of the whole.

MAINTAIN AMOROUS. Marietta, Ga., September 2, 1925.

In an opinion given Friday to J. C. Bloodworth, director of the veterans' service bureau of Georgia, T. R. Gross, assistant attorney general, held that any state board, department or bureau whose 1925 appropriation is exhausted and which is not able to meet further appropriations from the recent legislature, cannot draw on its appropriation for 1926 until January 1 of that year.

Such departments will have to borrow money to run on but they cannot draw it from the next year's appropriation, Mr. Gross said. Under the law, state and county agencies are entitled to carry over unexpended amounts of their appropriations for the current year.

It is said that two or three state bureaus are in same situation regarding exhausted funds for 1925, without deficiency appropriations to meet the needs of the year.

VIADUCT PROPOSAL AND NEW CITY HALL INDORSED BY JURY

Hearty endorsement of erection of viaducts on Pryor street and Central avenue and building a city hall in the rear of and connecting with the county courthouse, was given Friday by the July and August term grand jury in presents returned just before their discharge to Judge John D. Humphries.

The agreement as returned reads as follows:

"That we heartily endorse the two projects, namely, the building of the viaducts on Pryor street and Central avenue, and the building of the city hall in the rear of and connecting with the county courthouse.

The presentation was signed by the following grand jurors among whom are some of Atlanta's most prominent men:

J. R. Little, foreman, L. C. Gregg, C. T. Nunally, C. L. Chosewood, C. J. Kamper, L. W. Brown, C. R. Gaines, F. R. Mitchell, F. J. Coolidge, F. R. Meeker, W. C. Zornow, R. H. L. White, W. P. Walthall, S. W. Allen, B. M. Callaway, R. E. Thompson, J. T. Carroll, Arthur Wrigley, T. J. Dumas, R. B. Staggs and W. E. Dunn.

Unless they can live on the alleged "fame" they may get by swimming the English channel, the game isn't worth the candle.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LET DOCTORS BE DOCTORS

In the city of Buffalo where there is a paradoxical combination of fine schools and a low order of popular education, a demented man confined in an institution for the insane was actually nominated for office by popular petition not long since. Such an occurrence gives food for thought.

If I were king—a most unlikely eventuality, seeing that I have never been even nominated for anything more than secretary of the medical society, and damed if a mere woman didn't beat me in the election—I should immediately confine a representative subject, sort of a press council, to attempt to create order and uniformity in the regulations for the licensing of healers. Of course I should see to it that only men and women of fair education were invited to the conference, for it would be unfortunate indeed to permit women to have a voice in the formulation of such laws or regulations.

We ought to know how unfortunate that would be, we who live under the laws proposed and enacted by legislative bodies a considerable portion of whose membership consists of morons. If one wonders how women have obtained a voice in the formulation of such laws or regulations, let me assure you that only women could have done it.

I should submit to the conference a tentative defining act, that we might have some understanding of what constitutes the practice of healing. I should absolutely prohibit any individual from practicing as a healer unless he has been educated in such immaterial questions as the methods or modes of treatment employed in healing; but if all the conferees or confiliors had a fair education I suppose no such fool designation would arise. Still, I should have my own code.

There were dope dens and gambling joints. Police breaking down doors in subterranean caves and pitched battles in the underworld. They pitched beer bottles and chairs and buffets and pianos. There were black hand murders, fine drag-ger work, pistol shooting, rivers of blood, and piles of corpses.

Your hair was on end from the moment the first murder took place till the culprits sat down on the electric chair.

Half way through the film I lost track of the dead, but now in the hour of sober reflection I would say

there was one murder a minute, or

100 for 50 cents.

The police captain who was in charge of the Chinese funeral that took the first tong war victim to his grave told me that the Chinese placed a loaded revolver in the dead man's right hand. Over the left hand was a piece of cloth containing blood stains from the wound. Under this was a mirror.

The explanation is that when the dead man reaches hell he'll have the mirror to reflect the blood stains as a reminder that he must wait till his murderer reaches the same place. Then he can use the pistol. But that won't happen in Chinatown.

Chorus girls are not always the unprotected innocents in the midst of a wicked world as is generally supposed.

The explanation is that when the dead man reaches hell he'll have the mirror to reflect the blood stains as a reminder that he must wait till his murderer reaches the same place.

Then he can use the pistol. But that won't happen in Chinatown.

One of the most amusing things for a bystander, but certainly not for the perpetrator, are these slap-on-the-back recognitions. A man stood looking in a window on Fifth avenue. Another passed. The passer apparently thought he recognized the gazer. He walked up behind him and gave the fellow an awful whack on the shoulder. The gazer looked around and the slapper looked dumfounded.

"Oh, this is my mistake. I am sorry. I thought you were a friend of mine." Rubbing his shoulder, the other smiled. "If you're friends, I am glad I am not one of them," he said as he walked off.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, September 4.—Ordinary I like a good artistic dog fight a great deal better than a motion picture show where some woman flits across the white sheet 50 times per hour, each time in a different suit of clothes. Then there are endless explanations, but under the circumstances necessary, by the screen writer to make it a little plainer what the plot is all about.

The film I saw yesterday was an exception. One young lady has her father at the stage door, many others are chaperoned to and from the theater by their mothers.

While watching a rehearsal I noticed that several of the chorines though they were off their time off, were singing off time, reading any part of the score.

One of the chorines, however, was singing off time, reading any part of the score.

John Cleary came to look me up. His habitat is in Kirkland Lake, where he has several mining claims 100 miles from the nearest store. Only John does not call them claims; he says they're mines.

John hasn't been in a city for 20 years. He is a strapping giant with whiskers, wears corduroy breeches and a buckskin shirt that's covered with grease and dirt.

It so happened that John was hungry and we were on Madison avenue. We entered a restaurant. A waiter glanced from John to the manager and back again. The chef de salles came over and said: "Have the gentlemen a reservation?" John glowered at him. There wasn't a soul besides ourselves. "Now, none of your blanket-blank nonsense. Just you see how soon your blanket-blank cook can put me up a nice steak."

The manager walked off in a hurry. The steak was back in 10 minutes and never have I seen such courteous, efficient, satisfactory service.

The "legend" that "it ain't gonna rain no more" is not exactly true.

There will be showers in this section today, Saturday, we are to believe.

Pierre Van Paassen, A. L. Snider, long range weather prophet, of Griffin, Ga., who has been in the weather business these 40 years. The professor, however, putting all his experience in the weather business to the supreme test, holds little hope for much rain.

The actual drowsiness of this section of the earth is due to remain with us until some time in December.

To quote the professor, who sent the letter about it to The Constitution:</

MEDICAL SMOKE DRIVES OUT CATARRH.

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can now get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicated herbs, flowers and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke vapor is inhaled through the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs and carries medicine where sprays, pouches and salves can not possibly reach. Its effect is wonderful and healing and is entirely harmless. It contains no eubens or tobacco and may be used by women and children as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness, or, if subject to frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy, which may be had at any drug store. Get one of the convenient pocket size packages and prove for yourself the pleasant health effects. (advt.)

Had skin troubles so bad was ashamed to appear in public Resinol completely healed it

Entriene, Pa., March 4.—"Last summer I had a skin affection on my face, hands and arms. It kept spreading until I could not shave and hated to be seen in public. The itching was very annoying and nothing I tried gave me any relief. A friend recommended your Resinol Ointment and I bought some at a drug store. I began applying it freely and in a very short time the itching disappeared and the trouble was completely cured. Needless to say, I have great faith in 'Resinol' for skin disorders." (Signed) J. H. ATLANTANS PLANNING FOR SAFETY COUNCIL

Seven reservations have been made by members of the Atlanta Safety council to attend the national convention to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, the week of September 28, according to an announcement made by George Delbert secretary. A special car has been engaged to take the Atlanta delegates to the convention.

Among those who have signed for the trip are Hal M. Stanley, commissioner of commerce and labor; James A. Holloman, president of the Georgia Power company; and representatives from the Georgia Telephone and Telegraph company, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, and the Western Union Telegraph company.

Mr. Delbert will go to the convention in advance of the special car. A three-day conference will be held by leaders before the national council opens.

The special car will be provided by the Southern railway, according to announcement by E. E. Barr, district passenger agent. It will be attached to the Ponc de Leon special.

The Atlanta party will be joined here by a party from Florida. On the return trip the train will have a stop at the three fast trains—the miniature city hall after the proposed building here and various other interesting and highly decorated exhibits will be included in the spectacle.

Under direction of Superintendent L. L. Wallis of parks and playgrounds a "circus" will be put up from Grant park zoo and an elaborate floral display, arranged by city horticulturists will form an interesting feature.

MARQUARDT JUBILANT.

"We are highly jubilant," Mr. Marquardt said Friday night. "With the big train of visitors coming to see Atlanta and to remain over for the duration, with special services at the auditorium Sunday and prospects of the most colorful Labor day celebration ever attempted in the south, we will get a great success."

Mr. Allen has worked like a Trojan on the plans, and everyone else, from Mayor Sims down, has enthusiastically contributed to making the day in Atlanta truly representative of the spirit it represents.

The formation of Mr. Marquardt continued, "will be at the state capitol on Peachtree and Mitchell streets, and will proceed via Mitchell street to Whitehall, north to Peachtree, to Baker, counterturn at Baker, thence south on Peachtree to Whitehall and Alabama, east on Alabama, Central avenue, and disband. Of course this is tentative," he said.

Mr. Sims, who has been active in all phases of Labor day preparations, said: "I can't add much to what the mayor and Mr. Marquardt have said. We have tried our best to stage the greatest affair of its nature ever attempted in this city. How well we have succeeded will be shown today, Sunday and Monday."

Among the larger stores to be closed all day Monday are Davison-Paxson-Stokes company, affiliated with R. H. Macy company; Chamberlain-Johnson-Dubose company, J. P. Allen company, M. Rich and Brothers company, Frohsin's, J. Regenstein and Keely company.

D. LEON WILLIAMS LEAVES CHAMBER; IS GIVEN BANQUET

D. Leon Williams, secretary of the Junior chamber of commerce for two years, who has resigned to enter business in Miami, Fla., was honored at a banquet tendered by the junior organization Friday evening at the Henry Gray hotel.

This dinner marked the first of a series to be given by the junior chamber during the winter. Wives and friends of the members were present and the affair was an elaborate one.

Attendance was excellent.

President John Slaton commended Mr. Williams for his splendid work as a member of the junior body and presented him with a gold watch as a gift from the junior chamber.

Morgan Blake was toastmaster.

SAFETY BULLETIN PLANNED TO AID SCHOOL CHILDREN

A school bulletin will be published this year by the Atlanta safety council. It was decided at a meeting at Hotel DeSoto yesterday.

About 10,000 copies will be published weekly urging safety measures. Mr. Delbert declared. The publication will be a four-page pamphlet 6 by 9 inches.

It will be issued in four branches. The first week in each month will be devoted to the first, second and third grade. The fourth, fifth and sixth grade paper will be published and distributed the second week.

The third week publication will be devoted to the junior high schools and the fourth to senior high schools.

A measure providing for the issuance of 500 safety calendars to be used in the schools was proposed. President James A. Holloman proposed.

The plans were outlined at a dinner given the officers directors and chairman Thursday night by J. H. Kettnerman.

The first fall meeting is to be held next Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Henry Clay said Daniel Webster borrowed money from banks on joint notes.

Bryan's Son Chosen By Anti-Evolution League as President

Louisville, Ky., September 4.—(AP)—The Anti-Evolution League of America late today chose William Jennings Bryan, Jr., of Los Angeles as president and appointed a committee to wait upon him and determine if he would accept the office.

Dr. John Roach Straton, of New York, was elected chairman of the Anti-Evolution League of America, which will conduct what was termed a nationwide drive against teaching the evolution theory in public schools.

Bryan Is Undecided.

Los Angeles, September 4.—(AP)—William J. Bryan, Jr., told a night of his selection as president of the Anti-Evolution League of America, said he was unable to say if he would accept the office. He said he was unfamiliar with the league and would have to learn more about it.

SLAYER OF SHERIFF HELD WITHOUT BOND

Chattanooga, Tenn., September 4.—A federal warrant, charging Eli Layne, Marion county deputy, with the murder of J. H. Hennessee, who was shot in the Chattanooga United States courtroom yesterday, today was sworn out and served.

Layne will be given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Charles L. Tamm, in the same room in which he fired the bullets which resulted in Hennessee's death. Layne now is held without bond.

During the brief session of the court this morning everyone who entered was searched for firearms. Only one door to the courtroom was used and at this two deputies were stationed.

Covington, Ky., September 4.—(AP)—Ballot for clerical delegates and lay alternates to the general conference in the Kentucky conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, here today caused many of the delegates to suggest a similarity to the deadlocked national convention in New York last year. Ballot after ballot was necessary to obtain the required number of votes to elect.

The Rev. W. G. Cran, Nashville, Tenn., was elected a clerical delegate on the third ballot. Delegates won the anti-unionizationists won a clear cut victory in the election over the theologians.

Lima, Ohio, September 4.—(AP)—Unification of the Methodist Episcopal churches of the north and the south was approved by the west Ohio M. E. annual conference here today by a vote of 257 to 9. Action was taken following ten minutes of discussion.

Colorado Springs, Colo., September 4.—(AP)—By a vote of 124 to 11, the Colorado conference of the Methodist Episcopal church went on record as favoring reorganization of the northern and southern branches of the Methodist church.

Georgia delegates to the annual convention of the national federation of Methodist churches will begin in Kansas City, Mo., will leave on the Dixie Flyer this morning. The party will be composed of Lewis Crespo, of the Arcadia branch, main office, and Glenn Snow, of Station B, delegate.

The Georgians will join a special train in St. Louis and the entire train party will be entertained at Mohrly, Mo., by the business men's club and local clerks' union with an old-fashioned barbecue.

J. F. Tompkins, 23, of 311 South Pryor street, and H. W. Duncan, 25, of 2 Snyder street, were free Friday under bonds of $500 and $300 respectively. Tompkins is charged with shooting at another and Duncan is charged with assault and battery following an altercation in the Peachtree area last Saturday night.

Both were bound over to the state court by Recorder A. W. Calloway when they were arraigned Thursday. Duncan claimed in his testimony that Tompkins shot at him while Tompkins denied the allegation, saying he did not have a pistol in his hands during the fray. The bullet went wild.

Football Pays the Bills Of Other College Sports

This is the seventh of a series of articles, written by the Graduate Manager of one of America's greatest universities. He has been in college football for 18 years. He believes that the time has come to bring football finances into the light. His is a story worth listening to, told out of a long experience and a rich fund of information.

CHAPTER VII.

Hocus Pocus in Annual Reports.

(Copyright, 1925, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

I remember overhearing a conversation between two sleek, metropolitan visitors at a big, eastern football game several years ago. They were apparently Broadway theatrical producers.

"Costs a lot of dough to 'drat' a show like this," said one of them. "Yes," replied the other, "but look at that gate—and no salaries to pay! I'll bet somebody's getting fat out of this."

I resented this casual assumption of dishonesty on the part of college football management.

I was destined to hear this slur in one form or another, many times after that.

I began to realize that the tremendous investments in stadia, the desperate competition for players, together with the big staffs of coaches and trainers were gradually building up the impression that football was primarily a commercial enterprise.

The sporadic outbreaks of the reformers, who shoot all around the issue, without hitting the mark, have done nothing more than to augment this feeling.

Frenzied Finance.

I have given much thought to this matter, and I believe that the best thing to be done is to tell the real story of the average football financial budget.

You will recall that such a budget is submitted by the graduate manager to the faculty committee every year, and published.

But it is not the real budget.

It does not carry the word "of which I have previously referred in this series."

We will approach this domain by outlining the main details of this report. I have before me the 1924 report of a big eastern university. The disbursements include $200,000 in legitimate and other expenses, full and faithfully reported. These are: $120,000 to visiting teams; $55,000 to "small timers" who are promised guarantee when the schedules are arranged; $118,000 including such items as upkeep of athletic fields, stadium, roads, preparing programs, equipment for team officials and administrators, hotels, traveling expenses etc.

No Man's Land.

In following down this list from here on, you enter "no man's land." This is where a harassed graduate manager and his coach find a way of doing the impossible.

"Rubbers and supplies" is a useful item. Many of these are negligible in the financial but promising material for the next year, has been taken care of as a "rubber." Sometimes the "rat" and "widows" get by as tutors, sometimes under other classifications: the scouts are slipped in any possible way; any student registered in histology or pre-medical course, usually can be worked into the doctor's squad.

I have never known this zone of the report being used to carry any direct payment of money to players. I have known it to be used innumerable times in creating various soft jobs by which we carry along players whom we would be unable to retain otherwise.

The above total of $293,000 deducted from $523,000, leaves $230,000. The items which I have selected as being probably to "no man's land," and which, as they appear, do not disclose the real expenditures, total in this report $157,000.

That is about the margin in which the graduate manager works—say from about $125,000 to $150,000 in a big American college.

Paying for Other Sports.

Deducting the $137,000, we have left $86,000. Football usually carries about 15 other sports which are maintained at a loss. College baseball usually shows a loss of about $6,000 a season. Basketball, however, tennis, lacrosse, soccer, wrestling, boxing, fencing, swimming and golf show losses of from $2,000 to $10,000. In the report I have before me the total loss of other sports carried by football is about $50,000. Deducting this from the remaining football receipts, there is still a profit of roughly $45,000.

Football not only has kept college athletics solvent, but in supporting the other branches of college sports, it has vastly widened the degree of undergraduate participation in some form of athletics. A big, up-and-coming team will try to win several hundred dollars for varsity, freshman and intra-mural squads.

I am impatient with the frequently repeated charge that only a few men participate in major college athletics. Add to the football aspirants, the various candidates for teams in

ARTICLES HELPFUL, SAYS YALE PREXY

Editor.

The Constitution,

De Soto.

I appreciate your courtesy in permitting me to see your series of articles on Football Finance.

I am sure the articles will call forth extended comment and I trust they may be helpful in promoting the best interests of all those concerned.

The statements made by the writer are doubtless correct, but most of them have truth only as applied to a relatively limited group of institutions.

Yours very truly,

JAMES R. ANGELL,
President, Yale University.

the 15 other branches of sport, and then add to these the gymnasium classes, and you have pretty nearly covered the entire male under-graduates.

Football Pays the Bills.

Although the minor sports show losses, this does not mean that they are not considered important, or that attendance at contests is small. The fact is that, in these sports, as well as football competition is continually becoming sharper. Greater and greater expenditures for equipment and maintenance are necessary.

But it happens that football is the one big outdoor game that has so caught the popular fancy that it can be made to bring in tremendous crowds at high admission prices.

So far football has valiantly carried the load.

This is possible because of the fact that the drive for winning teams has developed the game to a pitch of skill and spectacular interest which gives it lasting and genuine public appeal.

If university regents and faculties would allow us to tell the exact truth in our annual reports, I think they would be much more impartial.

I hope they will let us tell the truth. If not, we will have to continue to depend on "no man's land."

SENATORS INCREASE LEAD.

Washington, September 4.—Ferguson held the Boston Red Sox to four runs seven hits today while the champion Senators hit timely for 9-3 victory. It lifted their record to 100-61, 13½ games ahead of the six full games. Philadelphia beat it.

It was Ferguson's third straight victory in a Washington uniform.

TRAVELERS LOSE TOM GULLEY

Little Rock, Ark., September 4.—(P)—Tom Gulley, right fielder for the Little Rock Travelers, and leading batter of the Southern association, is probably to the team what the reformed Garry is to the reformers.

Gulley, 21, has been suffering with slight attacks of appendicitis for some time, had a severe attack at Jackson, Tenn., where the team played an exhibition game today, and announced he would return at once to Little Rock for an operation.

Today provides the last opportunity for patrons of Keith's Forsyth to see Tom Walton, popular musical comedy star and heart-throb of "Foxy Orchestra" that is offering a new kind of music as the big feature attraction this week.

In addition are Stuart Barnes, monologist singing comedian; Fay, two Coleys and Fay, Julia Curtis and Stanton and Dolores.

"A Slave of Fashion."

(At the Howard.)

The wall of all women, be they rich or poor, have been clothes, dresses, clothes! There are women who stand in their very rooms for clothes; there are others who go gaily to satisfy their appetite for clothes.

"A Slave of Fashion," playing today for the last time at the Howard, is in line with this most feminine of all yearnings. Norma Shearer is to star in a role a taurine as the Travelers'.

The Howard's Prologue company with Rubin Bryan, Warner's orchestra, Miss Olive Hill and the chorus offer a splendid program for the week.

"Beggar on Horseback."

(Closing at Rialto.)

"Beggar on Horseback," that delightfully surprising comedy of a fantastic dream, which has Edward Everett Horton and Esther Ralston in the leading roles, ends its run at the Rialto theater, final showings today and this evening.

It gives way on the Rialto screen to "Wild, Wild Susan," in which Bobe Daniels will help to celebrate Paramount week. Pretty Estelle Bradley, Atlanta girl who is making her place in the motion picture world, started when she won the title of "Miss Atlanta" at the Atlantic City beauty tournament, appears at the Rialto in the Mermaid comedy, "Hello, Good-by."

"SALADON HIT HARD."

Chattanooga, Tenn., September 4.—Chattanooga batsmen hit Salada hard today and easily defeated Little Rock 7 to 2 with bases pitched steady baseball. The Look-

Month to speak, it was to reply to our question of what would happen in Atlanta Saturday among the golfers.

Life Insurance Cancelled.

"I don't know, I don't know," he said, "but I understand all life insurance was to be cancelled if Bob and Watts played the finals."

Matches such as being photographed half a hundred times, of receiving heavy masculine hand-shakes, and light feminine pats on the back were disposed of by the pair of Atlantans, and they left the city Saturday in their speedier car, ready to spend an evening of talk, maybe of golf, but probably not, and then turn into the sheets in adjoining rooms at the Schenley hotel.

Watts came here as Bob's protege, as a kid about to receive his first lessons in national tournament play by trying to qualify at what was eliminated after taking the big guns in the crucial matches.

Watts, instead, has turned golf traditions topsy-turvy, and has probably not, and then turn into the sheets in adjoining rooms at the Schenley hotel.

Watts came here as Bob's protege, as a kid about to receive his first lessons in national tournament play by trying to qualify at what was eliminated after taking the big guns in the crucial matches.

On the morning round Bob shot a 35, two under par, going out and in two over par on the back side, giving him an even 72, par for the 18.

In the afternoon, his medal score was 36, one better than par, and he made the remaining three holes of the match once more before he sank.

Bob and Von Elm halved the sixth with pretty par threes before Von Elm took Bob's lead a hole by putting one foot from the pin on his second for a birdie three on the seventh, where Bob got par. When they turned on the second nine Bob was six up with nine to go, for they had won his second, failed to get out on his third, was on his fourth and failed to can his 25-foot putt for a half. Von Elm shot par four on No. 5, but Bob was down with a 25-foot putt that gave him a birdie three.

Given a six, the best he could have made on No. 6 where he picked up Von Elm, going out in the morning had a medal score of 42, with his eagle three on No. 9, but in the afternoon he came down to 41, two over par for the 18. He started the afternoon with his first nine holes in 38 strokes, one over par, and with a birdie on No. 10, his play for the last three holes was two over par.

Bob shot birdies on the first two holes in the morning for a quick lead over Von Elm. On No. 1, his drive was long and his putt was over the green. He missed it to find the edge of the pin and holed his first putt. On No. 2 he had a 25-yard drive, chipped up and sank a 10-footer for a three.

won only one hole for Von Elm. The other holes he won he caught on either birdies or eagles. His eagle three in No. 9 in the morning was the first big birdie that has been captured during the tournament. His drive was 25 yards up the fairway and a full brassie shot laid him dead, a foot from the pin. Against this birdie, Bob shot a birdie four with two putts.

Bob has been over par in both of his other matches, those in which he beat Bill Reeks 11 and 10, and Clarence Wolff six and five. But in those matches he didn't need par golf to win. Today he did, and he rose to the emergency to beat the man he defeated last year in the finals at Merion to win his first amateur title of national importance.

When they turned on the second nine Bob was six up with nine to go, for they had won his second, failed to get out on his third, was on his fourth and failed to can his 25-foot putt for a half. Von Elm shot par four on No. 5, but Bob was down with a 25-foot putt that gave him a birdie three.

Given a six, the best he could have made on No. 6 where he picked up Von Elm, going out in the morning had a medal score of 42, with his eagle three on No. 9, but in the afternoon he came down to 41, two over par for the 18. He started the afternoon with his first nine holes in 38 strokes, one over par, and with a birdie on No. 10, his play for the last three holes was two over par.

Bob shot birdies on the first two holes in the morning for a quick lead over Von Elm. On No. 1, his drive was long and his putt was over the green. He missed it to find the edge of the pin and holed his first putt. On No. 2 he had a 25-yard drive, chipped up and sank a 10-footer for a three.

Three Birds.

They halved No. 3 with par fours. Bob nailed down a third birdie in four holes on No. 4, where Von Elm took his six. Here Bob's second was to the edge of the green and his approach putt was dead to the pin on the fourth.

Bob and Von Elm both took fives over par, on the fifth. But on the sixth Bob got his par three, while Von Elm's drive was trapped. His second was another trap, and still more sand. With the help of the trap he picked up each three putts for fives on No. 8 and then the Californian cut Bob's lead to three up with an eagle three on the ninth.

After the second nine holes Bob was just four up as a result of Von Elm's eagle three on No. 9. He picked up each three putts for fives on No. 10, but Von Elm sank his first putt, a short one, for a birdie three on No. 11, where Bob got a par four with two putts. The Californian broke on the long twelfth, though, as Bob continued his par golf. Bob's second shot was solid and had distance, and his chip was 30 feet from the pin, leaving him two putts. Von Elm was trapped on his drive. His shot was short, causing him to take two more to get on. Then he took two putts. From hazard form, Von Elm drove back into birdie stroke, finding a 25-yard drive for two over the short thirteenth.

Bob was in sand at the left of the green and was 20 feet from the pin on his second, for a four.

Bob went back to par golf and Von Elm slipped back into hazard form on No. 14, when Jones won the second. He shot up to the edge of the green and his approach putt was to the rim of the cup, while Von Elm was on in three and then took two putts.

After seesawing over the first few holes of the second nine, both settled down for three halved holes with four after Bob won the fifteenth with

SYNOPSIS.

Colonel Hallett and his wife, Margaret, are discussing plans for refurbishing their home. Mrs. Hallett is reminded of the past. Twenty years before she had been married to Henry Ledway, who died in a railroad wreck after being accused along with his partner, Selkirk, of masterminding a business rival. Selkirk had been tried and sentenced to twenty years. Mrs. Hallett tells her husband the morning paper announces Selkirk's release from prison.

"This is different." The girl's voice was unwontedly low with the suggestion of hidden feeling. Mrs. Hallett glanced at her sharply. It wasn't possible that Cornhouse had made any emotional impression on her! It mustn't be possible... Joan sat down, opened the portfolio she had brought with her, and began, abstractedly, to study the sketches it contained.

Mrs. Hallett took them, one by one, from her hand and studied them with some abstraction. She perceived, dimly, that they were clever, even beautiful. She looked up to find Joan watching her.

"You don't object to the man as an artist," said Joan, "because I can see you like his work. You can't object to him commercially, because the artist of paint and brush and purpose are extremely generous to him. And you can't object to him because he has not been born and bred with our push—you're not a snob!"

"I object to him—to use your own word—fundamentally. As a man."

"That means," counted Joan swiftly, "that you know something about him which I don't. And I think you ought to tell me, Mumusie."

"Can't you take my word for it that he is not fit for you to associate with?"

There was a difficult pause.

"Yes, I'll take it," Joan's voice, in contrast to her words, was hard, with a touch of weariness. "Of course I'll take your word, Mumusie."

Mrs. Hallette turned sharply away.

"I'm sorry. I oughtn't to have said that." Joan's contrition was sincere, but her eyes roved toward the folding doors, now ajar.

"Mrs. Selkirk has gone," said Mrs. Hallett, answering the look. "And as far as pointing out that you've been taking me on trust, I only say, you're quite justified. And I thank you enough for it, my baby. I can't..."

Before the sob could break in her throat, Joan's young arms were about her.

"I don't want you to tell me anything you don't want to," she said. "I'm sorry to say that you're not liking old Cornhouse was a filthy bore, was of course, because that puts the lid on the mannequin stunt. We may keep up a show of modernity before the world, but in our hearts we knew we're so old fashioned we wouldn't go against such a mother's judgment for anything. So that's that, Cornhouse."

Mrs. Hallett was moved.

"Darling, let's agree to postpone the whole question for a month. Very probably by that time I'll be able to confide fully in you and you'll see why I've taken this attitude. You make me feel such an autocrat."

"So we are, pet. So am I—I get it from you, too. No, I hate those post-pornments. I'll tell Cornhouse I've changed my mind and then I'll look round for something else to do."

"But there's no need, Joanie."

"Yes, there is. All the more now that you've turned Ray into a rich man. What was hard up, you know, it wasn't a money problem when I twen him and me. It was just that I didn't want to marry him or any one else yet. Now he's got a quarter of a million. I simply must make money of my own so that I can marry him instead and one else—if I want to. See?"

Mrs. Hallett watched her daughter light a cigarette. She watched every movement, watched the spurt of flame at the match end, watched the red glow and the soft blue smoke. If only she could go watching forever and have no need to strike again at the beautiful thing that was Joan's faith in her.

"What's that up, mumsie? Don't feel faint again, do you?"

"No. It's only that—that I can't make the money over to Ray after all."

"What? Why not?"

Mrs. Hallett, biting her lip, said nothing.

"More mysteries!"

Joan's tone was odd—odder than it had been all through this difficult interview.

"I know it's hard on Ray," faltered Mrs. Hallett.

"It is. Because, of course, he had almost come round to the point of accepting it before we got there—he's that kind."

"I can't help it—I've changed my mind."

"And another person it's hard on. Went on Joan, grinding out the unsmoked cigarette, "is Dad."

"Your father and I."

"No good handing out the dignity does just now. We've got to take care of it. You see, just before lunch Harcourt told me Dad had gone down to the Mississounds—well, I happen to know they're on the Riviera, so I guessed the old boy had really beat it to the club for a bit. The will, of course! Don't blame him altogether, either. It certainly was a knock-out. I don't see—"

"I'm breaking it to you gently. When I was in Cornhouse's flat, I suddenly thought I do the angel child and I borrowed Cornhouse's phone and rang up the Dads and told him to come round and grovel to you in about half an hour. He's almost due now!"

"I told him, you see, that you were as insulted about that will as any respectable matron could possibly be, and were handing the money over to Ray on the nail... So now we really are in the devil of a mess!"

CHAPTER XXVII.
Joan Interviews.

In that moment when she saw the death-like pallor spread over her mother's face, Joan Hallett stepped across the boundary that separates girlhood from womanhood.

"Brace up, mumsie," she commanded. "We're not done yet. We'll have to be, of course."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Hallett in a hard, dull voice. "I'll have to lie. Not you, Joan. I don't want you to be drawn in."

"I'm already. I lied—in effect—when I smuggled Selkirk into the flat. ... What you must say—"

A warning gesture from Mrs. Hallett cut across her words. A step had sounded in the hall and within the next second the door opened. Colonel Hallett came quickly in, his eyes searching the room.

"Margaret!"

"We didn't hear your key!" exclaimed Joan in unaffected dismay, while Mrs. Hallett sat dumbly awaiting the next blow of circumstance.

"Margaret!" Colonel Hallett waved

Lovely Visitors Honored at Many Affairs

Miss Mary Vereen, of Moultrie, the guest of Miss Jacqueline Moore, and Miss Ethel Woodruff, of Columbus, the guest of Miss Julia Lowry Meador, continue to be honored guests at many lovely affairs.

Miss Brown's Party.
Miss Penelope Brown entertained at a bridge-luncheon Friday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Brown, on Piedmont avenue, in compliment to Miss Vereen.

Pastel-shaded flowers were used as decorations, after the game luncheon was over. The specially appointed table was overlaid with a real lace cover and in the center was a basket of flowers in the pastel shades.

Miss Brown was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Elijah Brown, and Miss Lena Johnson.

Miss Bryan Entertains.

Miss Marion Bryan was hostess at a lovely afternoon tea Friday at 5 o'clock at the beautiful home of her parents, Judge and Mrs. Shepard Bryan, on Peachtree road, in honor of Miss Vereen.

The handsomely appointed table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth and held as a central decoration a silver basket of yellow sun-mer garden flowers encircled by silver candlesticks holding unshaded yellow lamps.

In the receiving line, with Miss Bryan were Miss Ethel Woodruff and Miss Mary Vereen, daintily gowned and wearing corsages of pink roses.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Julia Meador, Miss Jacqueline Moore, Miss Cornelie Orme, and Miss Suzan Brown.

Assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Shepard Bryan, Mrs. Wilmer Moore, Mrs. A. J. Orme, Mrs. Tom Meador and Miss Bird Blankenship.

Miss Mary Bryan and Miss Florence Bryan passed the bouquets. About 75 guests were invited.

Luncheon Given.

Miss Ethel Woodruff was honored guest Friday at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving club at which Miss Frances Barnwell entertained.

Lunch was served on the terrace. The table was overlaid with a real lace cover. In the center was a basket of yellow and blue flowers. At intervals were placed blue burning tapers. French dancing girls were given as favors. A dainty hand-painted place card marked each guest's place.

Mrs. W. C. Barnwell assisted her daughter in entertaining.

James Family Reunion.

More than 1,000 members of the James family are expected to attend the annual reunion of the James family on September 7 at Blair's bridge near Creekwater creek. There will be an all day outing and barbecue will be served. The James reunion was started by Mrs. Stephen A. James about 25 years ago.

WASHINGTON SEMINARY

School of Music

Miss Marguerite Cooper, for the past three years director of music, has been promoted. She has been added to the Musical Staff of Washington Seminary, which now offers excellent advantages to students in piano, pipe organ, violin, voice, theory, harmony and musical literature.

The full course of music in the Seminary may be substituted for certain studies in the literary departments and count as three units toward the literary diploma, thus affording time for a thorough musical education. The music lessons are given during school hours from 9 till 2, when the pupil is mentally alert, thus saving the tedious afternoon music lesson hour.

THE Musical Staff is composed of the following well-known musicians: Piano—Adrian Pouliot, Percy Cox and Miss Julie Eckford.

Voice—Miss Margaret Battle, George L. George Lindner.

Fretted Instruments—Mandolin, Guitar, Banjo, Ukulele, Irish Harp, under direction of Mrs. Mary Butt.

Pipe Organ—Miss Eda Bartholomew.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped When Other Medicines Failed

Walpole, N. H.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it has improved my health wonderfully. For months I was not regular and had terrible pain. They used to affect my side so I could not work. I read of others being helped by the Vegetable Compound and it might help me. I am very much better now, strong enough to do my own housework, and have two dear babies to care for besides. I tried other medicines before taking the Vegetable Compound, but I was never treated for my troubles. I speak highly of the Vegetable Compound to my friends and recommend it to any woman for rundown and weak condition." —Mrs. T. H. FULLER, Walpole, New Hampshire.

Over 200,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 out of every 100 of the replies say "Yes," and because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women it should help you.

A visit to this store will convince you.

The fraternity jewelry department is located on the main floor, Broad street entrance.

Buckhead, Ga., September 4.—(Special)—A fire that had been raging for several days on the Apalachee river, near this place, burned a large pine tree to such an extent that it fell across the 75-foot span of the bridge on Friday because loans made on that day carry over until Monday. Call loans on the stock exchange floor opened at 4 per cent with the outside limit offering 3 1/2, the low of 2 per cent with the exchange closing today.

This bridge is on the Dixie highway from Atlanta to Augusta. All traffic and travel was thrown into confusion until high speed was obtained on the one remaining span which turned it by way of Buckhead and Swords across another bridge six miles below the one wrecked, going back into the highway about one-fourth mile west of the Oconee river bridge.

This obstruction has seriously interfered with the mail service between this place and the small towns, Greshamville and Wraywood, which was served from this office.

It is hoped that the highway department will soon repair this bridge, as it will place the traveling public to much inconvenience in getting to market and other outside points.

Voting for Trustees
For State University
Closes on Saturday

Soperton, Ga., September 4.—(Special)—W. E. Boatwright, editor of The Fort Blazey of Swainsboro, Ga., was fined $25 for contempt of court here today by a committee appointed by the editor. The editor had been adjudged in contempt because of an editorial criticizing the judge for having freed Cross, Williams, a former prisoner, before completion of his sentence.

Williams had been convicted of shooting H. M. Flanders, editor of the Soperton News, and a son-in-law of Boatwright.

The fine imposed was paid.

Mrs. Maude McWhorter,
Wife of Winder Editor,
Dies; Funeral Saturday

Winder, Ga., September 4.—(Special)—Mrs. Maude McWhorter, wife of W. E. McWhorter, editor of the Winder News and president of the State bank of Winder, died early this morning at her home here. Mrs. McWhorter was one of the best known and best loved women of Winder. She was the oldest daughter of the late Zed F. Stanton, one of the pioneer citizens of this section, and had a large family connection in this state. She was a member of the Methodist church and always took an active interest in church affairs. She was of a most cheerful disposition and had been sick only about two weeks with her last illness.

Besides her husband, Rev. J. W. McWhorter, editor of the Winder News and president of the State bank of Winder, she is survived by a son, a son-in-law, marriage, Frank S. Bondurant, of Washington, D. C.; three brothers, W. M. Stanton, of Athens; Malcolm Stanton, with the Bethlehem-Chile Steel company, Santiago, Chile; two sisters, Mrs. Manzie S. Johnson, of Jonesboro, and Mrs. Ernest Stanton, of Hiram.

Her funeral will be preached from the residence Saturday morning at 10 o'clock by Rev. Walter B. Dillard of the Winder Methodist church, and interment will be in the family lot at Winder.

FARMER IS APPOINTED COURT STENOGRAHPER

Louisville, Ga., September 4.—(Special)—Judge Lucius F. Kendrick, 81, a Confederate veteran, died early this morning at her home near here yesterday. He was a prominent merchant of this county and was one of the county's leading citizens.

Funeral services will be held from the residence Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

He is survived by his widow, four sons, Inis M. K. O. J. R. Jr., and J. C. Cole, and one daughter, Miss Cecil Cole.

KOFEKENOKEE SWAMP

New York, September 4.—(P)—Renewed buying of foreign obligations lent interest to the bond market today despite a contraction in the volume of business. In the domestic list buying was slow, but the demand for issues of the day was sufficiently urgent to bring about numerous price advances, strengthening the tone of the entire market.

Investment bankers were at a loss to account for the sudden revival of activity in European bonds, unless it was believed recognition of the progress of the peace-making moves.

Most of the French municipals sold at the year's best prices and German 7s achieved a new high record above 98. Mexican issues continued to push ahead in response to the recent statements of President Calles that Mexico was anxious to resume debt payments on a timely basis, which would not call for a suspension.

With aggregate class one railroad earnings of almost $100,000,000 bearing out the individual improvements reported by the carriers, first-class railroad bonds attracted the attention. Gains were most moderate, but they included Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio, Frisco, Pere Marquette and Union Pacific issues. Local traction issues moved up on reports of better current earnings.

Piez-Arrow 8s, reaching a 1923 peak price, led an advance in industrial lines with minor gains. Dodge Brothers 6s, Sinclair and Shell Oil issues, Martin Sugar 7s and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7 1/2s.

Small tax-exempt issues, 241 241 241 Domestic.

GORDON INSTITUTE OPENS 73RD SESSION UPON SEPTEMBER 9

Barnesville, Ga., September 4.—(Special)—With the largest enrollment and brightest prospects for a successful year since 1919, Gordon Institute will be formally opened for its 73rd session on September 9. According to L. D. Watson, president, School officials state that already enough applications have been received from out-of-town students to more than fill the handsome brick dormitory recently erected, and arrangements probably will be made to accommodate some of the cadets in private homes.

Approximately 35 candidates for the 1925 football team are now on 10-day training camp at Taylor Springs, about 15 miles from the city, under the supervision of Coach "Mutt" Stephens, former star performer of Oglethorpe's "Petrels." These men will return to Barnesville in time for the opening of school and continue their practice in preparation for the hard schedule.
